THURSDAY OCTOBER 22, 1891.

Hill and the Press. Governor Hill, of New York, had a se ries of ovations at Atlanta, where he arrived Tuesday evening and where he on yesterday delivered the oration at the un siling of the monument to HENRY W. GRADY, of whom he spoke as "journalist, orator, and poet." The address is one of Mr. Hill's most finished productions and stamps him as a man of much ability. His estimate of Mr. Grapy is that which will find general ac-ceptation. Valuable, however, as Mr. Grapy's newspaper work was, we doubt if be ever would have attained the prominence which he enjoyed during the latter part of his life if he had not developed into an orator. The speeches that he made in the North on the New South gave him a pational reputation, However, we know that he was a thorough newspaper-man. He had been well educated and had served as reporter, correspondent, and editor before he was tested in managerial harness He was successful in all. He did good work everywhere and he had a magnetic way of going about it. Any paper in the land would have been better for having HENRY GRADY as a member of its staff.

By some Governor Hill will be accused and rather unjustly, of dealing in "taffy' where he praises the work of the press. He has long been a friend of our frater. nity. He has the reputation of being approachable and ready to communicate information, and though, no doubt, his tem per has been sorely tried at times by the abuse and misrepresentation of partisan journalists, we have never yet heard that he ever found it necessary to condemn a whole profession for the sins of a few individuals.

All the good things that he said about the press yesterday are true, and we have reason to believe that they were uttered in all sincerity. Newspaper people get so little praise—especially from great men whose greatness they have made—it is not surprising that they should feel kindly towards those who are appreciative of their calling.

The State Fair.

Next week is Fair week. For four days the Virginia Agricultural and Mechanical Society will hold an exhibition here in the spacious buildings erected in 1888 for the Exposition of that year.

There will be a fine exhibition of live stock, poultry, &c., and of the products of our fields. The manufacturers of Richmond, for their part, have promised an unusually attractive display of their goods and wares. In addition to all these and many other like attractions, fine races have been arranged for, and a military display may be expected in connection with the unveiling of the Wickham statue and the CUSTOMS RECEIPTS AT NEW YORK sham battle both.

It is going to be a busy week, and our visiting friends will find much here to interest them. The streets will be full of bustle and brightness, and there will be reunion here not only of veterans of the Confederacy, but of thousands of others who have not been in Richmond since the Lee Monument celebration.

We have reason to believe that the Fair Treasury (soin and fullion) on the 20th instant was $128,646,801, a loss of $0.873,421 since the 1st instant. It is, however, $10,979,079 incre-tion it is balance June 30th last, when it reach-ed its lowest point since January, 1888. At that then it was $202,955, 184, and in the following March it rose to $218,813,293, its highest point. will be richly worth seeing, and we hope that a great crowd of people from Virginia, West Virginia, and North Carolina will avail themselves of the low railroad rates and numerous special attractions offered on the occasion to pay us a visit. The people of Richmond have much to do in the way of preparation in the next few days, and we should be quick and industrious about it.

Not only does it devolve upon us to as sure the success of the exhibition, but to make ready our homes for the ever-welcome visits of our country kin and friends. Let us give our hearts to this matter and resolve to acquit ourselves hand-

That Late Train-

Our merchants, manufacturers, and newspaper managers are daily in receipt of letters from the country bordering on the Midland and Chesapeake and Ohio railways in which the writers describe the disadvantage to Richmond of the present schedule on the latter road.

The trouble is that the westward-bound assenger and mail train does not leave here passenger and mail train does not leave here until midday nearly, whereas the trains out from Baltimore and Washington leave at a much earlier hour.

It ought to be so that a Richmond man could leave here in the morning and go to any point between this city and Staunton. transact any business requiring but an hour or two of time, and return home at It ought to be so that our morning papers could be delivered to patrons while they are fresh and cotemporaneously at least with the delivery of northern papers. the northern papers are delivered and read hours and hours before any Richmond paper can be gotten. The northern merhas the same advantage over the Richmond merchant that the northern publisher has over the Richmond pub-From whatever part of Virginia the Richmond papers are driven by unjust and unreasonable schedules, from that very same territory our trade will be driven.

The Farmers' Benefit Ass'n of Illinois.

[By telegraph to the Dispatch.]

CHICAGO, October 21.—A dispatch from Springdeld, Ill., says: The Resolution Committee of the State assembly of the Farmers' Mutual Benefit Association brought in a report late last evening favoring the election of President, Vice-President, and United States Senators by the people; a graded income tax, free and uniform text-books, to be surnished by the county superintensiants, and the free and unlimited counage of silver. The last-named clause was warmly discussed, and finally adopted, the original resolution being considerably changed. The consideration of the other resolutions was not concluded when adjournment was taken. It is time to act. We propose that this community shall at once make an urgent at to the railroad company to remethe wrong. It is hardly likely that This is a matter for the consideration of the Chamber of Commerce. It would be worth its attention if none but newspaper ablishers' interests were involved, but we declare our solemn conviction that our merchants and manufacturers have $500 at stake where the newspapers have $1.

Evolution.

hop KEENER, of the Methodist Epis. copal Church, South, gave some good advice to his brethren of the Methodist Ecumenical Council at the session of that body on Tuesday last. "Go home," said he, "and get rid of this doctrine of evolution that puts a bomb under the Pentateuch and Mossa which will blow up if you don't get rid of it." He inued: "If you cannot get rid of the rine, get rid of the men and instituthat teach it, no matter how dear re to you. They will blow you up if on't." Unquestionably the most valuable property of existence is health, and everything conducing to a perfect state of health is of interest to the public. In this connection one of the most interesting of the exhibits at the American Institute Fair in New York this year is that of Walter Baker & Co.'s Breakfast Cocoa and Chocolate preparations. Their method of manufacture, unlike the Dutch process, does not admit the use of any chemicals, dives, or alkalies, and therefore produces not only an absolutely pure but an absolutely healthful drink. The exhibit in itself is a work of art, the booth in white and gold, with old gold silken hangings, the young lady altendants attired in paleblue sating gowns, old-gold basques, pink lace caps, and white aprons the exact costume of Liotard's celebrated painting. THE INVISIBLE ARMY.

from the earlist period, the idea has prevailed of a mysterious, unseen enemy to the human race warring perpetually against health and life. In the days when superstition reigned supreme, this enemy was held to be evil spirits with which the atmosphere was supposed at all times to swarm.

Relief was sought, therefore, through charms, incantations and propitiatory offerings. Under the influence of civilization this theory has disappeared, and with the light of modern science this invisible army and enemy has been exposed to view—a mighty host indeed, which no man can number. This army is composed of Microorganisms, or microbes. They are among the most minute bodies made visible by the microscope, but their increase is so rapid that unless checked by want of nutriment, they would in a few years take possession of the whole earth, to the exclusion of all other life.

A large proportion of this army is harmless, the poisonous part of it being distinguished as Pathogenic Microbes.

Some conception of the ravages of this mighty army of pathogenic microbes may be had from the general statement, that they are "the cause of four-fifths of all the diseases of the human family—that they destroy more lives than war, famine, fre, murder and shipwreck combined—and that they actually abbreviate the average term of human life by three-fourths" This army is divided into many sections, each formed of separate and distinct species, their manner of attack being various. They obtain access to the blood through the skin, through the air we breathe, the water we drink, and through inocculation.

But there is still another method of attack, namely: the dissemination through the circulation of the blood, of deadly poisons. These products of the pathogenic microbes, called promaines, tend not only to destroy the life of the person infected, but result circulation of the blood, of deadly poisons. These products of the paragene microses, called promaines, tend not only to destroy the life of the person infected, but result finally in the destruction of the microbes which produce them. This accounts for the self-limitation of infectious diseases when not fatal, such as measles, small-pox, etc.

There are diseases, however, such as Scrofula, Contagious Blood Poison, and their results and sequences, the limitation of which has hardly yet been fixed. The old treatment of mercury and potash would at best only hold the symptoms of these diseases in check, hoping that the pathogenic microbes might be destroyed by their own virus. This may happen in a term of years, but in the meantime the treatment kills both the microbe and the patient.
